SALISBURY STATE UNIVERSITY ALUMNI

We're the Tops Among UMS Campuses!

For the third year in a row, the SSU campus has received the highest rating of all 13 campuses in the University of Maryland System.

The Maryland Department of General Services evaluated SSU's physical plant, programs for preventive maintenance, housekeeping, groundskeeping, management, cost-effectiveness: "every aspect of the facility, from soup to nuts," according to SSU's vice president of administration, Joseph K. Gilbert. And yet for another year, SSU has finished ahead of the rest.

The University keeps the title despite being at the bottom of state funding—and despite this year's severe budget cuts.

Gilbert gives credit for the high marks to the people involved: the students and other staff the University employs, the management team, and to SSU's president, Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance, who is, in his own words, "convinced that when you give students an atmosphere that is pleasant and orderly it goes quite far in helping them to study and be serious about what they are here for.

"The facility should reflect the quality of the institution," Bellavance added.

Another key ingredient to SSU's success, according to Gilbert, has been its policy of hiring students, rather than contracting for campus services. Not only does this inspire students to take pride in the campus but it can give them the experience they need in beginning their careers. One graduate, who was involved in SSU's recycling project, now works for a major recycling company, BFI. Others, who received their training in the food services and groundskeeping departments, have gone on to jobs in restaurant and landscaping businesses.

> "We have good people on the job ... the campus has blossomed."

But the students aren't the only ones enjoying the campus. "Local residents and visitors stroll the campus as if it's a park," said Gilbert. "We have good people on the job. As a result, the campus has blossomed."

Work Information Network

The SSU Work Information Network (WIN) was created to help students and alumni in the most difficult job they will ever face—getting a job.

Alumni and friends of the University are asked to serve as contacts for WIN. This may include sending the SSU Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD) your job notices (both permanent and temporary), notifying the center of internships and summer employment, or information on work training programs, graduate school scholarships, etc.

WIN members are sometimes asked to advise students and alumni eager to learn more about career openings, employment patterns in a certain geographic area, prerequisites for entering a particular field, or other job-searching information.

The names, addresses and phone numbers of WIN participants are not published, but made available to students and alumni only through a counselor. For more information on WIN, please contact Terry Clay or Linda Benson at CPPD at (410) 543-6070.

SSU Foundation Fall Golf Classic

The ninth annual SSU Foundation Fall Golf Classic will be held Friday, October 16, at the Green Hill Yacht and Country Club. To participate, businesses and friends of the University contribute $400 which includes corporate sponsorship, green fees, cart, dinner, refreshments and prizes for each foursome. In last year's tourney $25,000 was raised by 144 golfers in support of scholarships and faculty research and development. For more information call Bob Gearhart, Director of Institutional Advancement, at (410) 543-6175.

Travel Abroad With SSU!

Join SSU students and faculty on visits to Russia, West Africa, England and Ireland during January.

Dr. Robert Berry of the History Department makes his annual trip to Russia including Moscow, St. Petersburg and Kiev. Contact him at (410) 543-6251.

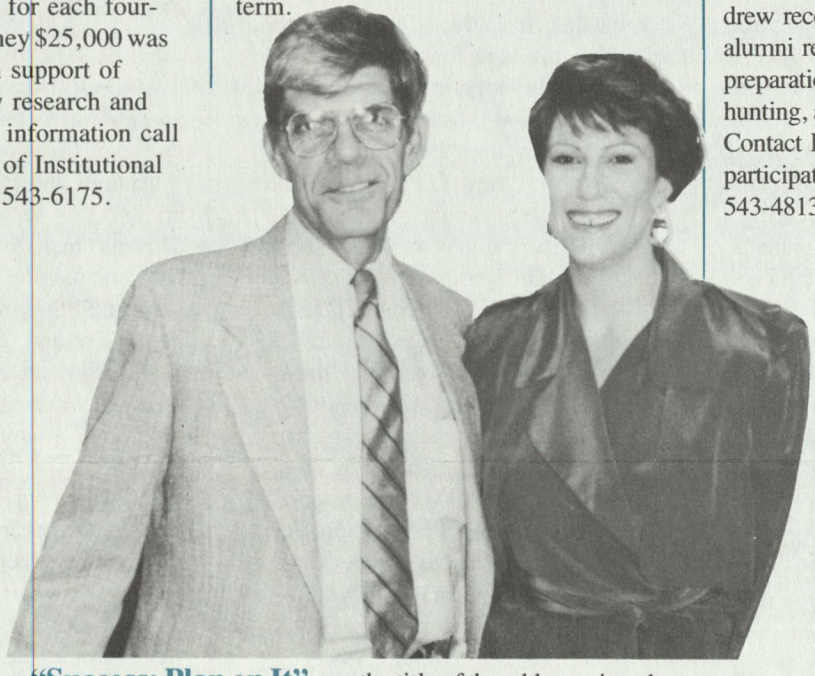
A trip to West Africa is being organized by Dr. Phillip Bosserman of the Sociology Department and Dr. Cyril Daddieh of the Political Science Department. Contact them at (410) 543-6430 and (410) 543-6388 respectively.

English Department professors Jim Welsh and Gaelic-speaking Dr. Patricia Killian head a combined field study of British and Gaelic cultures in visits to London, Dublin and the Irish countryside January 4-18. Contact Welsh at (410) 543-6446 for details.

All professors concerned hope to arrange these educational travel tours at affordable prices.

Alumni Board Nominations

If you or any alumni you know would like to serve as board members of the SSU Alumni Association, please contact the Office of Alumni Relations. Meetings are held four times annually. Each of the 18 board members serves a three-year term.



"Success: Plan on It" was the title of the address given by Dr. Kathleen Geipe '76 (pictured with President Thomas Bellavance) at the 67th Honors Convocation. Geipe earned her D.D.S. from the University of Maryland Dental School. A pioneer for women in dentistry in Maryland, she was the first woman dentist on the Eastern Shore and first woman delegate from Maryland to the American Dental Association.

Phonathon a Success!

In a year when alumni giving was down in the northeast, SSU's alumni were generous and enthusiastic. Despite recession, the '92 Alumni Phonathon saw an increase in both number of donors and donations received over 1991. Alumni pledged $58,025, up 31 per cent from the previous year. According to national statistics, the percentage of SSU alumni who gave is higher than that of most Big Ten Universities!

Career Day November 18

"With more career opportunities expected as the economic climate improves, we're planning for an even more outstanding Career Day this year," said Paul Rendine, Alumni Association board president and program chair. Wednesday, November 18, is the fifth annual Alumni Career Day. Last year's drew record numbers when 25 successful alumni returned to counsel students on preparation for the real world of job hunting, and what to expect once employed. Contact Rendine if you would like to participate as a panelist. Phone him at (410) 543-4813 (home) or (410) 860-1137 (work).

Keep 'In Touch'

If you know any alumni who are no longer on our mailing list and would like to receive "In Touch," please send their updated addresses to the Office of Alumni Relations.

Wallace French Golf Tournament

The sixth Wallace French Golf Tournament will be held on Monday, September 21, at the Cambridge Country Club. According to Calvin Massey '72, the Cambridge course, located on the Choptank River, has opened a new nine holes this season, which should make for a challenging day.

The 1991 event raised over $5,000 toward a scholarship in environmental science. Shane Deason of Salisbury, who is preparing a children's program about barrier island ecology at Assateague State Park, was the latest scholarship recipient. For details about the tournament call Massey at (410) 749-1244 or Paul Galanek, chair of this year's tournament, at (410) 228-1167.

African-American Alumni Weekend a Success

More than 125 alumni and friends attended the second annual African-American Alumni Weekend in March. Plans are already underway for next year's to be held in Ocean City, MD, April 24-25.

African-American Alumni Association meetings are scheduled during October. The western shore meeting is at 7 p.m. on Friday, October 9, at Morgan State University. The Delaware Association meeting at Delaware State University is at 7 p.m. on Friday, October 30.

For more information, call Alumni Association board members Charlene Mills (410) 546-1591, or Lawanda Gordy (410) 543-6099.

Chemistry Nationally Accredited

The American Chemical Society (ACS) has granted accreditation to the chemistry program in the Henson School. "Now we're in the 'in' group," said Chemistry Department chair, Dr. Frederick Kundell. "This will definitely help our graduates in gaining acceptance to the best schools."

"Every professional chemist is a member of the ACS," said Dr. David Rieck, SSU professor who headed up the accreditation effort. "This accreditation means that everyone in the field now knows that the degree we give is as good as that at any other accredited school."

Correction

In an article headed "Class of '43 Memorial Fund" in the spring 1992 issue of "In Touch," Elizabeth (Betsey) Collison Clark was mistakenly given the last name Cook. We apologize to Mrs. Clark for this error.

"This wonderful new facility will provide a great atmosphere for young people to study music, theatre and art," said Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer at the Fulton Hall dedication in May. The $16 million 85,000 square foot complex was named in honor of Charles R. and Martha Nock Fulton '41, who have endowed the Fulton School of Liberal Arts. Fulton Hall will be open during fall reunion weekends. (Photo courtesy of Todd Dudek of the Salisbury Daily Times.)

Sports: Making a National Splash

The 1991-92 sports year proved to be successful for most of the Sea Gull teams. Salisbury State not only dominated its conference, but also made a splash on the national scene as well.

For the fifth straight year, SSU was the class of the Eastern States Athletic Conference, winning five of the ESAC's 11 sports championships. The Gulls claimed the conference's all-sports trophy, signifying overall athletic supremacy.

On the national scene, Salisbury State had a representative in the NCAA Tournament during each of the three playing seasons: fall, winter and spring. In the fall, the field hockey squad made its eighth consecutive national tournament appearance, advancing to the quarterfinal round.

The winter months were dominated by the men's basketball team, which climbed to number two in the national rankings while winning 27 straight games. SSU finished 28-2 overall while forward Andre Foreman, who became the NCAA's all-time scoring leader for Division III, was named the national Player-of-the-Year.

In the spring, the men's lacrosse team made its fourth straight NCAA Tournament appearance and finished the year with a 12-2 mark.

Alumni Scholarship

Do you have a child or friend interested in attending SSU next fall? If so, he or she may be interested in the SSU Alumni Scholarship. The scholarship is worth $1,000 yearly, or $4,000 total. Preference is given to the children of alumni, however the scholarship is not restricted to such students. Requirements include admission to SSU, a 3.25 high school GPA, 1100 SAT with at least 500 on the verbal section of the test, and demonstrated financial need. For more information, including an application, write to the Office of Alumni Relations.

Student Business Club Wins National Award

In only its second year the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business's American Marketing Association (AMA) chapter has been named the outstanding chapter in the East and ranked fifth among more than 400 in the nation.

SSU faculty advisor, Dr. Mehmet Diriker, was astonished and delighted. Diriker also was honored with the AMA's National Advisor of the Year Award.

Graduation Tribute

A highlight of the 67th year spring commencement was a letter written by Ronald Poisker '92, from which President Thomas Bellavance read excerpts:

"I have . . . attended two major East Coast universities, and cannot begin to compare the sense of belonging to a school that SSU has given me. The quality of instruction and the individual attention available at SSU set it apart from those larger institutions," Poisker wrote. He has successfully applied to the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine.

Graduates beamed as alumni Franklin P. Perdue, who endowed the Perdue School of Business, and Paul Rendine, Alumni Association board president, handed them their diplomas. Some 800 students received bachelor's and master's degrees.

Sea Gull Century Oct. 10

In 1991 the League of American Wheelmen voted the SSU Cycling Club's Sea Gull Century as winner of the "National Century Challenge." This 100 mile bike ride throughout the scenic Eastern Shore was evaluated by its 1,100 participants as one of the "best centuries ever ridden."

This year it's back, bigger and better! A weekend of festivities is planned with the featured ride on Saturday, October 10. Also that day is a shorter 100 kilometer ride. Alumni wishing to participate should call (410) 548-2772 for registration and further information.

Remembering Tet

A conference anticipating the 25th anniversary of the Tet Offensive will address the military, political and diplomatic issues of the Vietnam War. Bui Dem (South Vietnam's ambassador to the U.S. 1967-1972) and R.W. Apple, Jr. (Vietnam war correspondent, New York Times) will be among the guest speakers at the event which is scheduled for November 19-21. Call Dr. Harry Basehart, Department of Political Science, (410) 543-6242 for details.

Serving the Community

Kudos for SSU students who gave 200,000 hours in community service during the past academic year. As nursing students conducted health screening clinics and worked on hospital wards, students from the Perdue School prepared business analyses for area companies. Social work majors took on a variety of jobs for halfway houses, counseling centers and social action agencies. Students from the Henson School did internships in biology, chemistry, computer science and geographical mapping. Others built houses with Habitat for Humanity, to name just a few.
